

Big Data is better in the cloud

Business Challenges

- Are the costs of your big data platform preventing you from exploring new business models?
- Would you be able to produce better insights with more data, quicker processing and faster analytics?
- What if you could prototype a business idea in weeks or even days, instead of months?

IT Challenges

- Is it challenging to meet IT budget, handle processing peaks and react to unexpected data growth?
- How much time do skilled specialists spend on managing the Big Data platform, instead of producing business value?
- Can you meet cost targets while meeting security and compliance targets?

Get the most out of your Big Data platform

Neos is helping customers to develop and execute strategies to improve performance and security, while reducing costs by migrating existing big data platforms to a secure and certified public cloud. Partnering with Neos will free up your skilled specialists to deliver value to your business, while we do the heavy lifting of managing your big data platform. Activities are either automated via the use of native AWS services, or outsourced to Neos IT with engineers in one of our Centres of Excellence.

Neos will improve your TCO (total cost of ownership) by helping you select the cost effective mix of cloud resources, e.g. reserved capacity for base workloads and on demand resources to handle peaks. A typical problem in hosted big data solutions is solved by decoupling storage from compute resources. This allows an infinite increase of data storage and flexible scaling of data processing resources. You will be able to fire up new big data platforms quicker to validate your PoC (proof of concept) and shut them down immediately after you are done, paying only for what you have used.
